COURT SAYS QUICK IS NO BETTER THAN WIFE

ORDERS HEAVY BONDS

Inasmuch as the Philadelphia "North American" gave prominence to a dispatch from Bellefonte giving a one-sided version to the much-discussed Quick case from Snow Shoe Township, which was reproduced in the "Centre Democrat" last week, local interest is attracted to a second dispatch in the same Philadelphia newspaper on Monday, last. This second dispatch presented the other side of the case by explaining exactly why Quick has been confined in the Centre County jail. Since last Saturday's court proceedings referred to by the "North American", bonds for Quick's release from jail have been sent to Judge Quigley, at Pittsburgh, for his approval. Judge Quigley has been holding court in that city this week. It is understood that signers to the bond include Larry Redding, of Snow Shoe. The dispatch in Monday's "North American," follows:

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Nov. 25.—Emphasizing that William R. Quick, of Snow Shoe, Pa., has been held in prison since October 7, not for shooting up his home that morning, but for violating court orders for the support of his children, Judge Henry C. Quigley, president judge of Centre County, yesterday remanded the Snow Shoe man to jail with the option of arranging bail totaling $2,500.

After undergoing a vigorous denunciation from the bench, Quick was informed he could obtain his release by furnishing $500 bond of a responsible person that he will pay $30 a month for the support of his three children, now placed in homes by court order. He must also obtain an additional bond of $2,000 to keep the peace if he is freed.

The case of Quick has had considerable effect in Centre County. Charges made by Quick from his prison cell involving the son of a prominent and wealthy politician of Snow Shoe were widely published, especially during the recent political campaign, by the Centre Democrat, of which Charles R. Kurtz is editor. The charges, ignored and unanswered, were a factor in a political turnover at the election in which several Democrats and dry Republicans were swept into office, notably Arthur C. Dale, district attorney-elect, who is one of Quick's attorneys.

Proceedings in court yesterday at the instance of the present district attorney, James C. Furst, brought Quick before Judge Quigley with his counsel, William G. Runkle, and Mr. Dale, and afforded the first exposition of "the other side" in Quick's case to be presented since he was arrested.

Mr. Furst said he had been asked whether Quick could be released on bond, and Mr. Runkle said if the court would fix bail an effort to procure bondsmen would be made.

Turning to Quick, Judge Quigley said:

"This is the first time you, or anybody for you, has appeared formally before the Court since your incarceration on the 7th of October, with the exception of a petition for a habeas corpus by Mr. Dale in your behalf sometime during the latter part of October growing out of the trouble at your home the early morning of the day you were brought to jail. In any event it is the first time any suggestion has been made that you be admitted to bail. You are responsible for originating the story that you are being held without justification and without any warrant in law, but on the other hand your insinuation is that the Court was influenced, through political or other ulterior motives, to persecute you and protect a situation which involves the son of a prominent citizen of that locality. You will understand fully that we realize the condition you found in your home was hopeless to say the least, and that the Court has no sympathy for your wife or the young man who was caught with her at that time, and you will further understand that these parties will be punished when they are brought to justice, which will be disposed of at the proper time. If, when the Court passes upon this matter officially, we do not do our duty it will then be time for you to complain.

"You will recall that because of your claim that your wife was unfaithful to you just before your release from custody last summer on the promise that you would pay $50.00 per month towards the support of your children, you stated to the Court, in effect, that you were going to kill your wife and yourself, and you were told at that time that if that was the way you felt about it you were not fit to be at large. Your present incarceration is due to the fact that you have ignored at least three different orders of the Court directing you to pay for the support of your children, and in this connection because of your wife's infidelity we were of opinion, and still are, that if you areset at liberty there is no assurance that you will not be returned to the jail in due course of time awaiting trial for the crime of murder.

"You have a right, as every citizen has, to have your wrongs redressed, but this should be done in an orderly way. The parties who have wronged you should be brought into court and punished legally, but the time has never come and never will come when citizens have the right to take the law into their own hands.

"You have worked up a great deal of sympathy for yourself through your stories, which have been accepted by a certain local newspaper without any attempt on its part to get the facts, on the theory that you, a much injured, faithful husband, are being held in jail without cause.

"In creating this sympathy for yourself you have overlooked the fact that you are no better than your wife. When you were given several chances to go back to your employment at Philipsburg and apply part of your earnings towards the support of your children, you were carrying on with another married woman.

"This is not mere hearsay on the part of the Court, because a letter you wrote to this woman sometime before your release in September was intercepted and is now in the hands of the Court. While we are not in any manner attempting to condone the offense of your wife and the young man in question, we do say that you are not entitled to the sympathy created for you.

"Your attorney, Mr. Runkle, knows that the Court is stating facts and knows personally what the Court is talking about, and I am sure agrees with the Court that there is not much to choose from between you and your wife. As was suggested by your attorney and Mr. Furst, the District Attorney, to the Court we are of opinion that you and your wife in any event will never live together, but my opinion is that there is not much to choose from between you.

"I have no confidence in her and I haven't any confidence in you, because everybody who knows you knows that you are as bad as she is, and your coming here from the standpoint of a poor injured husband doesn't appeal to the Court at all.

"Your three children have been sent to Homes in Williamsport and when the order was made on the 26th of October we incorporated the suggestion that neither one of you were fit persons for their care and custody. Their charge for maintenance is approximately $30 00 a month. Heretofore when orders were made with your promise to pay, the amount was fixed at $50 00 per month, and you were released on your own recognizance, you made no effort, but to the contrary spent your money for booze and on your own pleasures.

"As I have heretofore said I have no confidence in your word. The County of Centre has been directed to pay the $30 00 per month for the support of your children. If you can get some responsible person who will become security in the sum of $500.00 for the payment of $30 00 per month, and in this connection I suggest you or your attorneys might interview one or more of your sponsors who are attacking the integrity of the Court, we will accept such a bond.

"Because of what we know of you, your character and your disposition, and the threats you have heretofore made, we are not so sure if you are turned loose you will not commit murder.

"In order to protect the situation in that respect we say to you that we will accept a substantial bond in the sum of $2000.00 which will, to that extent, guarantee that you will keep the peace. If these bonds are approved the Court will release you; otherwise, you will have to remain in the Centre County Jail until further disposition."

Mrs. Daisy Quick and Edward Chambers, both of Snow Shoe Township, on Tuesday signed pleas of guilty to statutory charges.

New Rule for Notaries.

Governor Pinchot has established a new and drastic requirement on all persons applying for commissions as notary public. It is that each applicant must sign a pledge to personally support and comply with the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law. Where applicants refuse to sign such a pledge commissions are not issued. Some persons have withdrawn their applications rather than be forced to sign pledges of any kind.

ABOUT 50C. ON DOLLAR BANK COMPROMISE PLAN

Centre County Bank Depositors Committee Divided

NO ACTION YET TAKEN

Approximately fifty cents on the dollar is the basis of a compromise in the Centre County Bank failure case now being considered by members of the depositors' committee. Just how the committee will line up in a recommendation to the depositors as a whole is a matter of considerable doubt at the present time. No formal action on the proposed compromise has been taken by the committee. It is reported that some of the committee are disposed to favor it, while others are not. Any basis of settlement would have to be ratified by a majority of all the depositors.

The fifty cents on the dollar offer would be paid in cash, it is stated. Some time ago an offer of compromise provided for something like 65 to 70 cents on the dollar. This plan of compromise, it is reported, included part payment in cash and the balance in White Rock quarries stock. From what may be learned on the street, the new compromise offer does not call for payment of any part in White Rock stock.

Advocates of the compromise contend that with the bank case in the United States Supreme Court a final decision there may not be had for another year, if not longer. The bank closed its doors nineteen months ago.

Opponents of the compromise take the ground that since settlement has been delayed for so long a period by legal proceedings of one kind or another, they are disposed to fight matters to a finish. They express the belief that if they finally win in the courts the depositors will recover more than if they compromise.

HOUSE RUINED BY FIRE

David Barlet and Wife Were Away From Home.

The dwelling house of Mr. and Mrs. David Barlet, Jr., on East Curtin street, was practically ruined by fire on Tuesday evening. Both fire companies responded and did splendid work but were handicapped as the flames kept between the walls, in the partitions of the house, and could not be reached without great difficulty. The flames also had a good start when discovered. The fire started, it seems, because of a defective flue.

Mr. Barlet was in Pittsburgh on a business trip and Mrs. Barlet was also in the Pittsburgh district visiting, the fires being looked after during their absence by Mrs. Barlet's brother, George Showers, who resides nearby. Mr. Showers had banked the furnace for the night and everything seemed allright when he left.

Neighbors noticed the parlor seemed unusually light and an investigation revealed the fire was burning briskly. As the doors were locked and an entrance had to be gained. Edward Decker smashed in the glass in the door and, in doing so, sustained a severe gash on his right hand, which was treated at the hospital. While the cut bled freely, the woundwas not serious and Mr. Decker left the hospital on Wednesday morning.

Lots of Christmas Money.

Those who took advantage of the Christmas savings funds at the local banks will have lots of Christmas money this year. The plan has proved very popular. N. E. Robb, treasurer, of the Bellefonte Trust Company, said, "We had $10,000 last year and $20,000 this year. We will try to double this amount for next year. The checks will be mailed out about Dec. 5, so as to give the patrons advantage of early selection of their gifts."

Burgess W. H. Walker Hurt.

Burgess W. Harrison Walker had his left arm and shoulder painfully injured last Thursday morning when his big closed car upset at the top of a hill near Stoyestown, after skidding on the state road. Eben Bower, who was in the car with Mr. Walker, was not hurt. The car was damaged considerably, going over an embankment for about six feet. Mr. Walker and Mr. Bower were brought home by Robert Rosn.

Cars Crashed on Curve.

A Star touring car, driven by James Lawson, and a Chevrolet sedan, driven by Warren Wood, of Rockview, sideswiped while passing on the curve at the Ripka place near Pleasant Gap, last Friday evening. The occupants escaped injury, but both cars were slightly damaged.

NEW HIGHWAY PATROL IN OPERATION TOMORROW

Automobilists Must Comply With State Rules and Laws.

MOTOR SQUAD ON DUTY

Lock Haven and Clearfield will be among twenty sub-stations of Pennsylvania's new state highway motor-cycle patrol system which will be placed in operation tomorrow. In addition to those two towns, sub-stations will be located at the following places: At Factoryville, Doylestown, Stroudsburg, Downingtown, Lancaster, Pottsville, Harrisburg, Muncy, Towanda, Wellsboro, Lewistown, Chambersburg, Bedford, Ebensburg, Coudersport, Warren, Brookville, Erie, Franklin, Butler, Greensburg, Uniontown, Washington and Wyoming.

The patrolmen stationed in the municipalities mentioned will cover the territory within a radius of thirty miles of their headquarters. This method will result in an overlapping which it is figured will increase the efficiency of the patrol.

"The sole idea of the Legislature in providing for this Motor Patrol," said said Secretary Wright today, "is to safeguard the lives and property of those who use the roads of Pennsylvania. It is the hope of the Highway Department that the Motor Patrol will not be compelled to make wholesale arrests. No person who obeys the laws of the Commonwealth and the rules of the road need fear members of the Motor Patrol. Other persons, rightfully, will be dealt with according to law."

"Motorists who wish to avoid arrest by the new Patrol, it was suggested by the Department of Highways today, should pay particular attention to the following:

"Reckless Driving—Reckless driving is defined as driving and operating a motor vehicle so as to create a hazard to life, limb or property. This covers a wide range— from the operation of a car with defective brakes or glaring headlamps to cutting across traffic without a warning to cars in the rear; and includes any act or omission calculated to jeopardize the lives or property of others. The Motor Patrol will be particularly watchful for reckless drivers.

"Speed—So-called speed maniacs will be picked up, also those persons who travel at unreasonable rates on curves or towards the crests of hills.

"Headlamps—Cars on which the headlamps are out of focus will be stopped and may not proceed until the bulbs are properly focused. The members of the Motor Patrol have received instructions as to focusing of bulbs and will aid the driver in making adjustment. "One-eyed" cars will not be permitted to operate. The Patrol cannot prevent bulbs from burning out, but motorists, being accustomed to carry spare tires with them will hereafter be required to carry extra bulbs, so that at all times their headlamps and tail-lamps will be burning.

"Obscured Plates—Cars will not be permitted to operate on which the license plates are obscured by bumpers or tire carriers. There are a number of makes of bumpers the general trend of which is to secure license plates, and the operators will be compelled to replace their tags so that at all times, as required by law, they are plainly visible. Plates must be free from dirt No driver will be permitted to operate his car who purposely bends the tag so that only four or five of the numerals can be read.

Brakes—From time to time the Motor Patrol will stop automobiles and require a demonstration of brake conditions. If the brakes are not in proper adjustment the driver will be sent to the nearest garage and required to have them put in condition.

"Weights—The Motor Patrol will be watchful of those who overload their trucks, and will prosecute drivers found to be carrying 250 in excess of the weight allowed for the various truck classes. The Patrol will work in conjunction with the Highway Department's Motor Transit Survey.

"Parking—The State Highway Department's Rule No. 2 will be rigidly enforced and no parking will be permitted on any State Highway so as to interfere with the ordinary passage of two-way traffic. No exceptions will be made. No car or truck may stop for any purpose where it interferes with the passage of two-way traffic. Rule No. 2 also covers the operation of cars at curves or on hills.

"Horse-Drawn Vehicles—The State law which requires that at night horse-drawn vehicles display a light will be rigidly enforced.

"Mirrors—The Motor Patrol will require that the law be obeyed which compels either a clear vision to the rear or a mirror.

"Traffic Lines—At curves or on hills where the State Highway Department has painted white traffic lines the Motor Patrol will insist that drivers stay on their owh side of the white line; and immediate arrest will take place when drivers disfigure these lines when the paint is still wet.

"Pedestrians—The Motor Patrol is instructed that the right of pedestrians on highways is as great as the right of vehicles. The Patrol will suggest to pedestrians the advissbility always of walking toward traffic rather than with traffic, as is now too frequently the case.

"When a motorist is stopped by a Patrolman, his driver's card will be so punched that thereafter it will be a record against him, and this record will also show on the cards filed at Harrisburg.

"The Department will be particularly severe on reckless drivers. The law gives the Highway Commission power to revoke a license without warning, and cases of glaring recklessness when reported to Harrisburg will be followed immediately by loss of the offender's license."

CAUGHT WITHOUT LIGHTS

Jacksonville Farmer Has Narrow Escape In Accident.

Malcolm Pifer, who resides on a farm near Jacksonville, had a very narrow escape on Friday evening when an automobile driven by a Mr. Fisher ran into his wagon and team, wrecking the wagon and hurling Mr. Pifer to the side of the road.

The accident occurred along the Nittany valley state road, east of Mingoville. Mr. Pifer was driving home and had no light on his wagon, it is averred. As it was dark and two cars were approaching, the one baing driven up the valley by W. H. Allport, of Hastings, Mr. Fisher did not see the wagon and team until he ran into them. Nobody was seriously injured and the horses were not hurt.

Thanksgiving Day Football.

Locally, the most interesting game of football will be played at State College this afternoon when the Bellefonte High and the State College High teams will stage the Thanksgiving Day contest for which the coaches have primed their players during the entire season. The game closes one of the best seasons for the local High School and our eleven is expecting to win by putting the best into the game that they have, feeling they will find worthy rivals in the strong State College eleven. There is also much interest in the Penn State and Pitt game, to be played at Pittsburgh, quite a number of local fans being in the Iron City to witness this contest.

Four Generations Celebrate.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cain, at their home on Nittany mountain at "Mary's Last Resting Place," enjoyed this Thanksgiving Day by having as guests for a delicious turkey dinner, Mrs. Cain's grandmother, Mrs. Jane Austin, of Milesburg, who is 80 years old; her mother, Mrs. Annie Hendershot; her three brothers, Fred, McClure and William Hendershot, the latter's wife and baby son, Fred, who is about six months old. Four generations were represented by Mrs. Jane Austin, Mrs. Annie Hendershot, son William and the latter's son, Fred.

PRISONERS IN COURT GET MAXIMUM SENTENCE

Judge Quigley Scores Taylor and Hetrick Severely

3 TO 6 YEARS IN "PEN"

George Taylor and Paul Hetrick were each sentenced to serve not less than three years nor more than six years in the Western penitentiary at Pittsburgh in a special sessions of court held last Saturday morning by Judge Henry C. Quigley. The men were given maximum sentences on two counts—larceny and receiving stolen goods.

Judge Quigley, in sentencing them, very frankly and emphatically told them that the community was not safe with such characters loose and that, while he never liked to sentence anybody, his hands were tied by an Act of Assembly, passed in 1923, which made it illegal to impose a mimimum sentence that was more than half the maximum.

Explaining his stand, the Judge told of how he presided in court where a man was saved from electrocution because one member of the jury held out for second degree murder and finally, after three or four days, had persuaded all the jury to agree with him, in which case the Judge sentenced the prisoner to not less than 19 years nor more than 20, legal at that time but which sentence he could not have made more than 10 to 20 years according to the new Act. In this local instance, with Taylor and Hetrick before him pleading guilty to two very daring and almost unbelieveable crimes, the Judge evidently would like to have given longer sentences to protect the community, feeling as he inferred, that the two crimes exposed were perhaps not the only ones committed heresbout by the men since they were discharged from Rockview last January.

The stories they told, substantiated the account as printed last week. Questioned by Judge Quigley as to whether they did not think they had their nerve to go to Rockview, to the penitentiary farm and kill a porker at the barn near Mr. Healy's house, the prisoners could not speak. "When you can get away with something like that the community certainly is not safe with you about," said the Judge.

Taylor's wife, Mabel Emil Shawley Taylor, who was arrested and placed in jail with the men last week, was released with no information being made against her. The woman said the men had only told her that "Here is some meat" and she did not know how they got it. The men also, in their sworn statements, said they had not told her of their operations.

Previous to hearing the case, the matter of approving a bond to cover damages by the Keystone Power Corporation in exercising their right of eminent domain, recently granted by the Public Service Commission, in crossing lands on the farms of S. H. Hoy and Clement G. Dale, in Benner Township, with the heavy voltage line from Huntingdon County to Spring Township, near Bellefonte, was brought before Judge Quigley by the corporation's attorney, Arthur Dale.

The bond was not limited as to amount of damages, but a question was raised by J. C. Furst, Esq., representing the farm land owners, as to whether the bonding company had complied with law in registering in Centre County. The Judge said he would approve the bond if said registration was properly made.

Early Morning Crash.

In an early morning crash on Monday at the intersection of Howard and Allegheny streets, in Bellefonte, the Chevrolet truck used by Harry Janet in his meat business was wrecked and one of the Charles Miller taxies, driven by his son, Paul, was slightly damaged. Neither of the drivers was injured. It seems that Mr. Miller was driving toward Allegheny street and Mr. Janet toward Linn street on the way to his home, west of Milesburg, when the mishap occurred. Both cars, it is said, were speeding along and it is alleged that Mr. Janet swerved his truck quickly to the left in an attempt to avoid the collision.

Dinkey Struck Car.

M. A. Landey and his guests, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Strawn, of New Kensington, had a narrow escape last Thursday morning when a dinkey from the White Rock quarries ran into the car they occupied as they drove onto the crossing at Pleasant Gap while enroute to Lewistown, where they were going to meet Mrs. Landay. The car was put out of commission and arrangements were made for George Beezer to complete their trip.

WIFE WAS A NERVOUS WRECK AND VERY THIN

Harrisburg Woman Was in Very Bad Shape Hntil She Started to Take Hypo-Cod

Mr. H. D. Romberger, 1323 State St., Harrisburg, Pa., writes that "My wife was in a terrible condition, she was subject to nervous spells that were so bad that I was afraid that I was going to lose her. One night she was so bad that a specialist worked for six hours to save her. She was unable to go anywhere for fear of one of these attacks. She grew very weak and thin. She did not seem to want to eat at all, and at night she was very restless. I knew that Hypo-Cod had done wonders for my mother, so I finally talked her into giving it a trial. After taking several bottles, I find her greatly improved, in fact she seems like a different woman, her appetite is good, she is gaining in strength, and weight, and her face is filling out and her body is taking on flesh that is firm and solid. She sleeps fine at night and wakes refreshed and rested in the morning. I think Hypo-Cod is the greatest medicine in the world, for I know what I am talking about when I say that Hypo-Cod has done wonders for both my mother and wife." If you are in a weak, run-down condition, or convalescing after a lingering illness, we urge you to get a bottle of Hypo-Cod from your druggists, or send $1.00 to the Earl Chemical Co., Wheeling, W. KING CRAB NOW IN ALASKA

Migrates From Japan and Canneries Are Kept Busy Packing the Giant Shellfish.

The king crab, formerly only found in merchantable quantities near Japan, has invaded the waters of Cook inlet, Prince William sound, off Sitka, and Bering sea, in such numbers that four canneries in Alaska are packing the giant shellfish, says a Seattle correspondent. About 20,000 cases is the expected output, worth $35 a case, or $700,000.

The king crab measures from three to five feet from tip to tip of the huge claws, or pincers, and in weight from four to twelve pounds. The largest specimen of the king crab, of which Dean John N. Cobb of the College of Fisheries, University of Washington, has heard, was found in the net of a Japanese fisherman, and measured 19 feet from tip to tip, weighing 40 pounds.

Just why these crabs should migrate to the American shores is a mystery. Pacific coast packing plants will turn to crab packing on a large scale.—New York World.

Only Escape From High Rent.

The only way to get away from paying such high rents is to own one's home. Costs of construction have advanced also and real estate is higher than ever before, but the land will be dearer still as time goes on, while there is no indication that building will ever be cheaper. The most important consideration to the average family is that a home is bought with money that otherwise would have gone for rent, plus a little more that would have been spent for nonessential things and for extravagances.

The habit of saving, or rather of avoiding wastefulness, is taught by buying a home. That good habit is retained after the home is paid for, and usually takes the form of savings bank deposits.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

DRAGGING MOUNT

By JANE GORDON

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

GERRY rode the proud black horse slowly between the crimson trees of fall. She sat in her saddle gracefully—Gerry was a small, graceful person altogether—but her blue eyes, beneath their sweeping dark lashes, were wistful and shadowed with perplexing thought.

It was so very strange about Dick. Repeatedly he assured her of his faithful and adoring love—Dick's actions, too, bore out his protestation—in all but one particular—the paining, tormenting particular that was saddening Gerry's heretofore unclouded days.

Dick lately had taken a decided fancy for the companionship of a rattle-headed, rather pretty young woman who had come to be the guest of Mrs. Spaulding. Mrs. Spaulding, a mutual friend of Geraldine and her fiance, had presented them both to the monopolizing Miss Sidney Sails. Ever since, it seemed to the astonished Gerry, she had met here and there, by chance, her fiance with Miss Sails near by. Now it would be in the street where Mrs. Spaulding lived; again in a park path, or even in the lobby of the church they attended—after service. Gerry had at first treated the affair as a joke, with Dick; then, at the more distressing joking of her friends, she had reasoned with him on the subject. Dick first appeared amused, then indignant, then abjectly apologetic.

"I can't help it, Pal," he would say—his pet name for Geraldine—"the girl just seems to spring up where I pass." An irritatingly inadequate explanation.

That Miss Sidney, the irresponsible, had an evident admiration for the good-looking, good-natured Dick, was beyond dispute. Even Dick, in his own embarrassed modesty, was obliged to admit the fact, when challenged. He did not admit that Miss Sidney was quite frank regarding her attachment for this, another girl's acknowledged lover.

The morning was fresh and sweet, recalling other charmed mornings when she and Dick rode through a love-enchanted world together. How happily they had started upon these early morning canters—every turn of the way brought home poignantly sweet memory. Almost Gerry seemed to smell the accustomed fragrance of his cigar—fragrant to her because it seemed a part of Dick's presence. Tears coursed unheeded down the girl's pale cheeks—Dick, who could have been so faithless. Yesterday she had encountered him in this woodland path with Sidney—his confused explanation that he had met her there unexpectedly as he hurried by the short cut to Gerry's home. Always, always Sidney near; always his excusing.

Other cantering steps came swiftly behind. Gerry's heart seemed for the moment to cease beating. Surely this, the familiar sound of Brown Bettie's hoofs in chase. Dick then, too, had arisen early to ride through the wood, before business took him to town. Gerry's heart quickened to painful apprehension—would Sidney be beside him? Dick was racing after her—racing, no doubt, with some futile, foolish excuse regarding that last affair with Miss Sidney.

Gerry's indignation came on afresh with his nearness. She would give him a chase for his pains. Roses rushed to her pale cheeks, crimson now like the roadside foliage. Freely she gave Major the rein, excitedly urging—the other horse came on, panting behind. Then there was the tangled brush that ofttimes caught a horse's foot. Gerry remembered it, Dick might not; she slowed down at the turn. Major had cleared the trap-like brush daintily. Brown Betty had ceased in her mad rush; there was no sound of cantering feet behind. Breathlessly Gerry waited. She did not wish to turn back to face Dick in her anxiety—if he should be safe and unharmed, should she flaunt her tender love for him? The hoofbeats came on again; she drew a breath of vast relief—then the roses left Gerry's cheeks, to a deepened pallor—Brown Betty was dragging her mount—riderless. The horse stopped obediently alongside. Gerry dismounted, fastened the horses together, went slowly, gropingly around the turn. No sound, no welcoming voice to direct her. Silence. Then Major called wonderingly, Brown Betty echoing the complaint. Gerry stood still in the woodland path; there, near the tangled brush, lay a man's huddled figure. She knew well the gray tweed coat—knew the dark head cradled on outstretched arms. He was very still as she bent over him and raised the bowed head in her own protecting arms. His dark eyes looked up at her, widened. "Darling! Darling!" whispered Gerry, "tell me that you are not suffering." The big body lay motionless in her embrace. Then Dick turned to kiss the small ministering hands. "Suffering," remarked a very reassuring voice. "I should say not! For the first time in months I am absolutely happy. When I saw that you were still determined to avoid me, Pal, I just sort of got discouraged and slipped down here to think things over. Guess Brown Betty must have taken her own way."

Early morning is very sweet in a woodland way. Love understood is very sweet, too. The lovers lingered.

"But," said Gerry, "I shall never see a dragging mount again without a chill of recollection of what might have been."

HE BLAMES THE BLONDES

Judge Thomas F. Graham of the San Francisco superior court, whose specialty is divorce cases, says the blonde with the "baby stare" is responsible for most of the marital unhappiness. He advises men to marry brunettes, preferably those with high cheekbones and large noses. These, he says, are money savers and hard workers.

New Light Thrown on Etruscan Origin

One of Most Puzzling Mysteries of History May Be Solved by Discovery.

Washington, D. C.—"One of the most puzzling mysteries of history, the source of Etruscan civilization, famous rival of Rome, may be solved by the discovery announced from Italy of a very ancient city near Ferrara," explains a bulletin from the National Geographic society and continues:

"Tombs recently found beneath the mud deposited by the Po river are of a period antedating the founding of Rome and indicate an Etruscan origin. Romulus, founder of Rome, suckled by a she-wolf according to legend, found the Etruscan people firmly established when he began Rome. Legend gives them a league of twelve cities thriving on the rich fertile plain to which Egypt, Greece and Africa paid bounteous tribute in gold, silver, scarabs, rare vases and priceless gems. Pisa, famous today for its leaning tower, was a small village of rich, extravagant, voluptuous Etruria. All the great cities have vanished.

Fell Victims to Luxury.

"Etruscans are supposed to have entered Italy from the Po region. Whether they came from Macedonia, the home of Alexander the Great, or whether they were a colony established by Greece in the days of her grandeur may be decided by the remains of the lost city discovered near Ferrara. Like Rome, Etruria fell victim of her sin. Diodorus wrote, 'Their country was so fertile they derived therefrom not only sufficient for their needs but enough to supply them with luxuries. Twice a day they partook of elaborate repasts at which the tables were decked with embroidered cloths and vessels of gold and silver. The servants were noticeable for the richness of their attire. In fact, giving themselves up to sensuous enjoyments they had naturally lost the glorious reputation their ancestors had won in wars.'

"Etruria today is a country of dun fields and deep rocky ravines. Ferrara, too, where the ancient Etrurian city has been unearthed, is a dismal faded flower living on the memories of its glorious blooming in the bright days of the Italian Renaissance.

Reminders of Famous Names.

"Scraps of graceful cornices and weather-worn marble remind the visitor of famous names; of Lucrezia Borgia, who had been married four times by her father, Pope Alexander VII, at the age of twenty-two; of Tasso who wrote 'Jerusalem Delivered' while living under the patronage of the famous Lucrezia. Titian achieved his first great success in Ferrara with magnificent renaissance canvas for the altar of the church of Fari. Then there was Aldus. Even today men who deal with type the whole world round know and praise the work of this man, who, following close on the heels of Gutenberg, inventor of printing, produced type which is still a standard of grace. It was Aldus, also protege of Lucrezia, living at the magnificent ducal palace of Ferrara, who developed what is now known as italic type.

"Aldus was no less a scholar than a printer. His emissaries and fellow-workers scoured Greece and Constantinople for the fast disappearing Greek gems of literature. He produced the first Greek grammar and saved to the world priceless works of Horace Plato, Socrates and other writers, philosophers and singers who will always be intellectual giants of civilization.

Made Fine Art of Wickedness.

"Brilliant and colorful as was the Italian Renaissance period it was also corrupt, licentious, immoral and wicked beyond belief. Great works of Titian, Bellini, Raphael were balanced by diabolical murders, by assassination bought and paid for, by poisonings, by intestine wars, by religion and political life both sunk in a morass of evil practices. Into such a setting a famous son of Ferrara was born, the noteid Savonarola. He foreswore the corrupt court life and like a prophet of the Old Testament went through the land preaching against wickedness and assuring God's forgiveness for the penitent. Great crowds were charged with enthusiasm by the power of his oratory, the people changed their way of life, simple garb was assumed by thousands, and monarchs were overthrown.

"So powerful did Savonarola become that enemies plotted his death. Finally he and two of his followers were tried by a jury of their enemies, condemned to death, hanged, and their bodies burned. Amid the memories of great courts, great painters and great marytyrdom Ferrara lives, sleepy and stodgy under the sun and the Italian blue sky. Now with the discovery of the Etrurian town a new memory is added to the already long list."

Award $1,015,272 in U-Boat Claim

Washington.—A judgment for $1,015,272.33 with interest from January 18, 1919, has been rendered by the Court of Claims in favor of the New York and Porto Rico Steamship company for the value of the steamship Caroline, which was sunk by a German submarine off the New Jersey coast on June 2, 1918, while Germany's U-boat raids were being carried on along the eastern seaboard of the United States. Passengers and crew escaped in lifeboats.

The shipping board, which requisitioned the ship, awarded $1,250,000. The amount was unsatisfactory to the steamship company, which brought suit to recover the real value of the vessel.

Explorers Sail Up Deadly River Course

Eighteen Adventurers Enter Cobra Whence None Has Ever Returned.

San Francisco.—Eighteen "gentlemen" sailors, who early last spring sailed out of the Golden Gate for the South seas aboard the old clipper ship Narwhal, are in a fair way toward realizing the thing which they set out to seek, namely adventure of the hair-raising variety, with possible death thrown in.

The Narwhal and her motley crew, made up of almost as many different nationalities as there are members, is somewhere up the mysterious Cobra river in Borneo. Seafaring men who have ventured into the South seas declare the river is as deadly as its name.

None Ever Returns.

Never before has it been successfully explored by white men. Several parties of adventurers in the past 20 years have sought to solve its secrets and bring back to the outside world the story of the country and the people in the jungle fastness which it penetrates. None of the exploring parties has ever returned. Neither have they ever been heard from again.

According to a letter received here, the Narwhal started its adventure cruise up the Cobra more than a month ago. The river is navigable for large vessels for hundreds of miles into the interior depths of Borneo. At the last South seas' port where the Narwhal stopped to take on fresh supplies it was announced that all of her crew would attempt the hazardous trip. Plans are for the Narwhal to proceed up the river as far as it proves navigable for her and then for the crew to take to small boats and explore the Cobra, if possible, clear to its source.

Should the party emerge safe and sound, unlike all others that have ventured up the Cobra, the world promises to be considerably enriched by their journeyings. Not only are they carrying along arms and ammunition for big game hunting and trapping, but three motion picture cameras and thousands of feet of film are a part of the Narwhal's outfit. Two movie photographers will attempt to secure for an American film company pictures of the strange and cannibalistic people that are said to be found along the Cobra in its far interior reaches. Hunters aboard the Narwhal also will seek to bring back specimens of rhinoceros, elephants, orang-utan and several species of deadly snakes.

Of Diverse Nations.

The cruise of the Narwhal is one of the most picturesque in modern seafaring history. Included among the 18 "gentlemen" sailors are a former Russian nobleman, two titled Englishmen, an Arctic explorer, two Frenchmen, who have hunted big game in Africa; a former American naval commander and two Germans, who once were plantation owners in the Solomon Islands.

The Narwhal's principal objective is an island in the Solomon group, where the two German plantation owners formerly lived and where, according to their claims, they were compelled to bury a quarter of a million dollars in gold and gems at the outbreak of the World war. Should the story of the Germans prove true and the fortune be recovered, half of it will be divided up among the other 16 crew members.

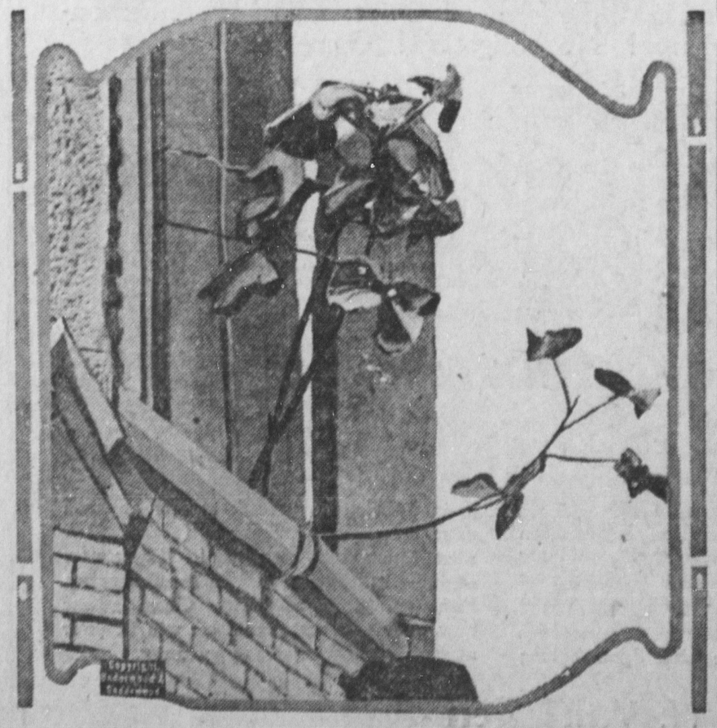
Many stories regarding the adventures of the Narwhal's crew already have drifted back home. In her cruise across the Pacific to Pago Pago, a hard-boiled and hard-fisted mate who did not believe in the soviet system of social equality aboard ship compelled most of the "gentlemen" sailors to scrub decks, take turns in the cook's galley and do other menial tasks. There was a near-mutiny, but it was promptly put down by the mate with a belaying pin. When the Narwhal finally made Pago Pago the crew fired the mate. They had to pay the mate a whole year's salary and his transportation home.

Fled From Amazons.

In the meantime native belles at Pago Pago insisted that several members of the crew marry them and take up their permanent abode as South Sea islands husbands, and a near battle was staged with natives when they turned down the invitations.

So little is known of the Cobra river, where the Narwhal's crew is now seeking its latest adventures, that their experiences cannot even be conjectured. Veteran mariners who have been in Borneo waters, all tell like stories for its reputed deadliness for white adventurers. Among other things, it is said to swarm so thickly with crocodiles of such huge size that a small boat does not dare venture into many parts of it.

Tree on Church Won't Be Killed



For three years efforts have been made to destroy this tree, growing in the tower of Trinity Diocesan church in Washington, but the tree has come back to life. The latest attempt to destroy it was made by boring holes in the tower and filling them with acid, but the limbs soon sprouted out as before. Now the members of the church have come to believe that there is some significance to the persistent growth of the tree and that it perhaps means new life and spiritual growth in their little church.

MAGIC OF HARDY NORSEMEN

Believe That Charms Could Give Preternatural Strength and Protection.

Besides the priests, the Norsemen had their soothsayers, and they also believed that, by the power of the runes, the dead could be made to speak. The runes of the men were called "galder," and another kind of magic practiced by women was called "seid."

It was thought that these wise women possessed the power of raising or allaying storms and of hardening the body so that the sword could not cut it. Some of their charms were supposed to give preternatural strength, others the power of crossing the sea without the aid of a ship, of creating and destroying love, of assuming different forms, of becoming invisible, of giving the "evil eye."

Both men and women thus supernaturally endowed, it was believed, could charm garments so as to protect the wearer from injury. They could set a horse's head on a stake, and with certain imprecations, throw havoc into the camp of an enemy.—Detroit News.

New U. S. Fur Farm.

The new experimental fur farm of the bureau of biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, is located in Greenfield township, Saratoga county, New York. This farm consists of about 20 acres of well-drained and wooded land and contains a farmhouse which is being renovated to be used as a residence for the superintendent of the farm and his family. Present plans call for a series of modern pens to accommodate foxes, martens, and skunks and other fur bearers. The animals and equipment were moved from Keeseville to the new farm recently.

Bees Use Prairie Dog Holes.

During the past few years thousands of black-tailed prairie dogs have been exterminated in the Colorado district through the systematic efforts of the local people under the direction of the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture and the Colorado Agricultural college. On the many sloping hillsides in Douglas county the old chimneys of the vacated burrows of these prairie dogs are still visible. Swarms of bees have been discovered going in and out of these chimneys, and the buzzing in the enlarged cavities below indicates that honey is being stored there.

Health and good looks

—the reward of internal cleanliness

HEALTH and good looks go hand in hand. If you do not keep clean internally, your looks and health are undermined together. A clogged intestine breeds poisons that reach every part of the body. These poisons ruin the complexion and undermine health. Constipation brings on such ailments as headaches, bilious attacks, and insomnia—each of which saps your health and vitality. Soon much more serious conditions follow.

Good Looks Throughout Life If You Keep Clean Internally

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation.

Physicians Favor Lubrication

The lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Not a Medicine

Nujol is not a laxative and cannot gripe. Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world.

Cleanliness Demands More Than Bathing

Don't give disease a start. Adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. Nujol is not a medicine. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

FARM PRODUCTS SHOW

The Centre County Farm Products Show will be held on the day of the annual meeting of the Farm Bureau, Saturday, Dec. 22 at the Court House. Due to the early date of the County fair at Centre Hall this is really the only farm products show here, the Centre Hall fair being too early for a good exhibit of farm products.

The exhibits this year will include corn, wheat, barley, oats, potatoes, apples and eggs. The quantity required for each exhibit will be: corn, 10 ears; wheat, oats and barley, 1 peck; potatoes, 1 peck; apples, plate of five; eggs, one dozen.

Uniformity is the thing most important in selecting a good exhibit of farm products. This includes uniformity in size, shape and color and also freedom from disease. As in the past years the best exhibits will be forwarded to Harrisburg to represent Centre County at the State Farm Products Show in January. Attractive premiums have been offered for both the county and state show, hence every farmer should take this opportunity to exhibit the best farm products.

DINOSAUR TRACKS IN EAST

Remains of Prehistoric Animal Found Near Old Home of President James Monroe.

Strange three-toed tracks found in blocks of sandstone quarried to make a walk in front of the former home of President James Monroe at "Oak Hill" near Aldie, London county, six miles from Leesburg, Va., have been declared by scientists to be the footprints made in the sand by a gigantic reptilian dinosaur fifteen million years ago.

While dinosaurs are chiefly known from reconstruction of fossil bones found in the western states, where these pre-historic creatures were apparently most abundant, many tracks of these creatures have been found in eastern states before, although few remains of the fossil reptiles themselves have yet come to light in the East.

The first evidence of dinosaurs was turned up by a farmer's plow in Connecticut in 1802, and was in the form of impressions similar to the footprints in the sands of geologic time just unearthed near Leesburg. At that time, these mysterious tracks were thought to belong to some unknown bird and became known as the tracks of Noah's raven. Later investigation and the finding of skeletal remains of the dinosaurs in the West in 1870 showed that extinct reptiles of gigantic size had made them.

The finding of these fossils where President Monroe once lived has recalled to historians that Thomas Jefferson, another president from Virginia and a close personal and political friend of Monroe's, was on of this country's earliest fossil hunters and himself discovered what he termed Megalonyx, or "The Great Claw," a prehistoric giant sloth which lived hundreds of thousands of years ago, but several million years later than the dinosaurs.—Kansas City Star.

FISH THAT SHOCKS ITS PREY

Whenever an Enemy Approaches the Torpedo It Emits From Its Body a Kind of Electricity.

The torpedo, or electric ray, grows to a large size, sometimes weighing seventy or eighty pounds. This peculiar fish has a nearly circular body, a short tail and a very small mouth. The back is brownish in color and the underneath parts are white.

The torpedo obtains its name from its power of giving a violent shock, similar to an electric shock, to anything with which it comes in contact. Whenever an enemy approaches the fish emits from its body a kind of electricity, which incapacitates the attacker immediately. In capturing its food the torpedo fish finds this power of use. Being very inactive, it cannot pursue the small fish which form its diet, so it lies in wait until they swim close by and then throws out its powerful shock, which instantly renders them helpless.

If a person touches this strange fish he is attacked by cramp, which affects the stomach, producing a kind of convulsion. For this reason the torpedo is sometimes known as the "cramp fish."—Detroit News.

Where Brides Are Stolen.

The men of Bali, an island in the Indian archipelago, still, as they did centuries ago, secure their wives by purchase or capture. An exchange of ardent glances in temple or market place, and perhaps a few clandestine meetings, tell the lover if the lady is not adverse to abduction. He knows, however, that if he is caught in the act of carrying her off her willingness will not satisfy father or brother; so he lays his plans carefully and smuggles her away in absolute secrecy. After a few days in hiding the groom sends a friend to his bride's parents to ask their forgiveness. Though the messenger invariably is received with great show of hostility, the culprits usually are forgiven. But if the third visit of the "go-between" is without result, the lover and his bride are doomed to banishment from their village and people.

OVER THE COUNTY

Rubber boots saved John Rines, of Centre Hall, from a severe burning the other day. He was assisting R. I. Smith at butchering and a hook broke while a kettle of hot fat was being lifted from the fire place. The hot lard spilled over his boots but did not burn through.

The Joseph Parker property and another tract adjoining it, both beautifully located in the Seven mountains and containing about six acres of land, with several buildings erected thereon, have been purchased by Centre Hall parties and will be made into a tourists resort. The consideration was $8000.

Thanksgiving Day is here. The holiday season is on. A large number of persons have already planned for their Christmas purchases and some of them have been made. "The Republican" would make a splendid gift to any of your good friends. Every week it would be a delightful reminder of your friendship. The Ku Klux Klan has reached Millheim and the mystic impression was felt by hundreds of the residents as they watched the fiery emblem, the brightly burning cross in the Weizel field along the mountains north of the town. Two loud explosions brought practically everybody out of the home and store, wherever the people were, until every street corner had its crowd, some admiring, others quiet, and still others condemning the display, as is customary when the cross of the Ku Klux Klan burns its significant message.

Potatoes are steadily dropping in price. Starting at $1.25 per bushels, two months ago. they have declined until it seems difficult for the growers to get 60 cents per bushel for them.

The Pine Hill tract of timber near Potters mills, where Frank Wingard met such a tragic death last week, is one of the finest tracts of white pine being cut today. For many years it was protected by the Allisons. One of the pretty, big white pine trees, yielded a stick of lumber 8x10 inches and 42 feet long.

To witness a bear roll down the mountainside and strike against their auto, then scamper away, was the novel experience of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Slack and David Stoner, of Centre Hall, as they were driving over Nittany mountain in the vicinity of the watering trough. The bear had crossed the road and attempted to gain the mountainside where sure footing was at a premium. The foothold he had pulled loose and bruin lost his balance, rolling awkwardly against the car.

George Goodhart, 16, of Centre Hall, holds a unique hunter's record, having shot six squirrels from one tree. George also got two rabbits. He found eight gray squirrels on the tree, much as though they were holding a conference. Six is the limit and George had to be satisfied with that number. Mrs. Belle Whiteman, who has been conducting a restaurant in Centre Hall for several years, the other day purchased for $2,100 the property occupied by Harry E. Weaver, who will move his family to Altoona, in the spring, being employed in the Pennsy shops in that city.

Will Pave Allen Street.

State College will have their principal thoroughfare, Allen St., paved next spring, according to present plans. The County Commissioners have approved the plan to allot the borough $38,000, the state highway department has indicated their co-operation and those pressing the improvement feel sure the residents to be directly benefitted will secure the money needed by the town to pay their end of the work.

In New Home.

J. Howard Musser, State College grocer, has moved into his new home, which was built from native limestone and is one of the finest in the college town.

Correspondence

Howard

Rev. and Mrs. A. A. Price, of this place, went to Lewistown Monday to spend Thanksgiving Day with Mrs. Price's relatives.

Malcolm Schenck and Clair Lyons spent several days of last week bird hunting on the Allegheny mountains. They were able to bag 9 pheasants.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rathmell and Walter L. Cook were visiting in Philadelphia over Sunday.

A great number of our citizens left this week for the mountains to hunt deer. Some hunt on the Allegheny mountains while the greater number hunt on the Seven mountains. We wish them all success.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick V. Pletcher and son Donald are visiting with the latter's brother in Pittsburgh this week.

MILEY COFFEY MISSING

Beech Creek Man Not Heard from In Two Months.

Miley Coffey, of Beech Creek, has not been heard from for two months and his family is becoming very anxious as to his fate.

The man left his home to take a job at Burnham, near Lewistown. His wife has sent a number of letters in efforts to locate him, but all have been returned as unclaimed. There is no apparent reason why Mr. Coffey has not written home unless he has met with foul play.

He has a wife and four children, the family bearing a good reputation in their community. He is about 40 years old close to 6 feet tall, while he weighs nearly 200 pounds. Formerly, he was employed at the brick works at Beech Creek.

Doctor's Car Burned.

The Ford coupe of Dr. John P. Sebring, of Bellefonte, was burned on Friday night while the physician was driving on Beaver road, west of Julian, to the home of a patient. The car just seemed to burst in flames and Dr. Sebring had a narrow escape. The cause of the fire could not be learned. The body of the car was burned off and nothing but the wheels, chassis and metal parts remained, which were towed back to Bellefonte later. Dr. Sebring walked to the home of the patient and was brought back to town in another car.

Turkey Prices Drop.

Thanksgiving turkey prices experienced a sharp drop this year, as compared with prices of recent years. Christmas turkeys, it is predicted, will be even much cheaper. At the noted Hatfield turkey market last week, the highest grade birds sold for 50 cents per pound, while mediums went for 40 cents, and many for 35 and 30 cents. An overabundance of turkeys from Virginia and other southern states is given as the reason for low prices. Turkeys are so numerous in Texas that they bring but 16 and 18 cents per pound.

Robbers Failed to Get Money.

An attempt to rob the cash register at the Blue and White garage in State College on last Friday morning, was a failure. The register was broken open by using an iron bar, but the would-be robbers were frightened away before securing anything. It is said two men had been seen about the place and they drove away in a red sport model roadster which had been parked near the garage for some time.

Voters Want Good Roads.

The remarkable majority given the $50,00,000 road bond issue at the recent election, which was 120,000 greater than given in 1918, indicates that the voters of the Keystone state want good roads. Official returns from all but three counties in the state gave the total majority as 375,000.

Squeezed Between Two Cars.

David Snyder, 38 years old, a Pennsy brakeman from Tyrone, was very painfully injured in the local yards when he was squeezed between two cars while in the act of coupling them. He was removed to the Altoona hospital and an X-ray taken, revealing a fracture of the left hip.

Fred Myers Coupe Damaged.

Fred Myers, of Bellefonte, escaped injury, but his Ford coupe was considerably damaged on Monday morning in a collision with a state highway truck on the Nittany mountain road. The coupe was taken to the Beatty garage for repairs.

Ford Ran Into Bus.

Ernest Tate on last Friday evening escaped injury, but the Ford light truck, which he was driving, was slightly damaged when it collided with one of Emerick's busses in Milesburg.

Car Damaged in Collision.

Elmer E. Bartley Dead.

Elmer E. Bartley died at his home on Valentine street on Monday evening at 5:45 from angina pectoris, an affection of the heart. Mr. Bartley had not been in good health for several weeks but was able to be about his home and his death was therefore very unexpected. He was a son of William and Catherine E. Bartley and was born in Union County, August 6, 1867. He married Ella May Stover on December 27, 1894, and they moved to Bellefonte eleven years ago. Mr. Bartley was an earnest Christian citizen, being affiliated with various denominations until coming to Bellefonte, since which time he was a loyal and consistent member of the United Evangelical church. He was converted at the early age of 14 years. In his church work he was called upon frequently to fill offices, which he always did well. He was an active member of the local lodges of the P. O. S. of A. and the Knights of the Golden Eagle. Mr. Bartley, during his residence in Bellefonte, was employed at the Gamble mill until it was sold to Uish and Bashoar, after which he worked for the American Lime & Stone Company and, until three weeks ago, for the Decker Brothers garage. No children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Bartley but they adopted a daughter and son, Mrs. Elmedia Summers, of Tyrone, and Fred, of Renovo, who survive, with the widow, and the following brothers and sisters: Howard, Alice and Frank, of Bellefonte; Irvin, of Chicago, Ill.; James, of Nittany; Charles, of Marion Township. Services were held at the Evangelical church this Thursday morning at 10 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. Reed O. Steely, with brief services by the P. O. S. of A. and at the grave by the Knights of the Golden Eagle. Burial was made in Zion cemetery.

Mrs. J. T. Zeigler Dead.

Mrs. Myra Zeigler, wife of J. T. Zeigler, died at her home on Reynolds Ave. on Saturday morning at 6:30 o'clock from complications. The deceased had not been in good health for some time. She fell about two months ago, the injuries hastening her death. She was born at Pleasant Gap on May 27, 1850, her maiden name being Myra Stone. She was a splendid woman, devoted to her home, and will be much missed. Surviving are her husband and four sons: Charles, who resides on a farm along the Jacksonville road; Edgar, of Juniata; Homer, of Clearfield; and Clarence, of Bellefonte. Funeral services were held on Monday and burial made at Pleasant Gap.

Mrs. Anna McClellan Dead.

Mrs. Anna McClellan, widow of David McClellan, and a lifelong resident of Milesburg, died at the home of a son, Edward, in Milesburg, early on Tuesday morning after several years illness from asthma. The deceased was 86 years old and was twice married, her first husband, James Robb, passing away early in life. Mr. McClellan, died about 24 years ago. Surviving are six children: Daniel McClellan, of DuBois; Edward and Harry, of Milesburg; and George McClellan, of Ohio; Mrs. Phil Hall, of Snow Shoe, and James Robb, of Union County; one brother, John Grubb, of McKeesport; and one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, of Bellefonte. Funeral services will be held on Friday and burial made in the Advent cemetery.

David H. Myers Dead.

David H. Myers, a brother of Mrs. Barbara Wilson, of Howard, and a resident of Millville, died in the Geissinger hospital at Danville, on Sunday afternoon after a two weeks' illness from gangrene of the foot. Deceased was engaged in farming in lower Bald Eagle valley for many years. One son, three sisters and a brother survive.

Boy Scouts Cafeteria.

The following is the menu for the Boy Scouts cafeteria supper at the Presbyterian chapel, Tuesday evening, Dec. 4: Chicken pie, roast beef, roast pork, with sweet potatoes, meat loaf, escalloped potatoes, corn, baked beans, macaroni, chicken salad, cabbage salad, Waldorf salad, potato salad, fruit salad, rolls, pie, cake, ice cream and sherbet, coffee and sherbet. The prices are reasonable, and either a dinner or a supper may be enjoyed according to taste and pocket book. The public is cordially invited.

No Demand for Turkeys.

There was no demand for turkeys for the Thanksgiving dinner this year. Folks seem to have gotten away from the traditional turkey, and some other meat, a number having chicken, was served in most homes. Farmers offered turkeys at 50 cents per pound live weight, but could not sell them. The price for dressed turkeys was 75 cents.

SHADE VETERAN OF 2 WARS

South Dakota Legion Man Had Many Experiences in Philippines and in France.

M. L. Shade of Mitchell, S. D., a veteran of two wars, has one recollection of army life that he claims is unforgettable, and at least is so unusual that experiences of any A. E. F. men cannot duplicate it, unless they be "gobs". Shade, an ardent American Legion worker in South Dakota, declares that he spent 90 days on an army transport without setting foot on shore, during the Spanish-American war and the Philippine insurrection following.

He was born in Princeton, Ill., in 1876, and at the age of fifteen was thrown on his own resources, with but a scant education gained in rural schools. His earlier life work was that of a laborer in mines, steel mills and on farms.

But the war with Spain came and he enlisted with an Iowa Guard regiment ordered to San Francisco, which embarked on the transport Covington for Manila. After a long sea voyage the boat was sailed into Manila bay, but orders were changed and the ship was sent southward with the troops. At Iloilo Iloilo the transport put in, but the troops were held up again. Back the ship went to Cavite, where, after 90 days, the men set foot ashore.

Shade served with his regiment in several severe engagements, and on discharge re-enlisted with another Philippine organization. In all, he fought in 222 battles. He was mustered out at Manila in 1901, remaining there for a period on confidential work for the government.

Back in the States, he became associated with life insurance firms in Rockford, Ill., and while there was a member of the National Guard. Then he went to Texas, where he was hit by the panic of 1907, but, undaunted, made his way back to Sioux Falls, S. D., joining the guard almost immediately after his arrival there. He served as chief of police of Mitchell, S. D., in 1911, and received a commission as major in the South Dakota Guard that year. He was called for border service in 1916, and was discharged early in 1917.

At the outbreak of the World war he was sent to Camp Greene, N. C., and was attached to the Forty-first division. During overseas service he commanded several ammunition guard units, served with the French at Soissons and was sent to St. Aignan-Noyers to establish a large replacement depot for motor transportation. He was later commissioned as lieutenant colonel and ordered to Romorantin, where he assumed command of the air service shops, built up from a personnel of 600 to 7,000 men. He virtually commanded all troop units at this camp.

Before he sailed for America he was cited for meritorious service and given a full colonelcy. On his arrival in South Dakota he was named to the state highway commission, of which he is now a member.

His work for the American Legion has been thorough and enthusiastic. He led the local post of the Legion during its early days and served in several capacities with this post. He was named as department commander in South Dakota in 1919-1920, and was national executive committeeman during that time. He has been a delegate to all national conventions of the Legion and has served on convention committees of military policy and of finance.

In all his reminiscences of army days, however, Colonel Shade declares that none are so vivid as those spent dodging around the Philippines on the army transport, seeking a place to land.

Removed Flags From Graves.

Legion members in Rutherford, N. J., recently appeared before the city council to protest the action of municipal employees in removing flags from the graves of veterans in a local cemetery. The flags had been removed following a "clean up" of the burial place and were discovered by the Legion men in a dirt heap outside the cemetery.

LEGION BAND AT CONVENTION

Wichita (Kan.) Organization, Made Up of Former Service Men, Attends National Meeting.

The American Legion band of Wichita, Kan., one of the first musical organizations formed entirely from membership of the former service men's association, represented the state at the national convention in San Francisco.

The band is composed of 45 musicians, and was awarded $1,500 from the Legion's state treasury in order to help pay the expense of taking the musicians to the convention city. The band was organized early in 1922 and went to New Orleans with 22 musicians. In competition with bands from all over the country, the organization received seventh place, despite the small instrumentation. The band has played many local engagements since the 1922 convention, among these being a contract with the city of Wichita for municipal concerts, and for the International Wheat and Farm exposition. Lester Weatherwax, formerly director of the Three Hundred and Forty-first Field Artillery band and well known on lyceum and chautauqua circuits, directs the organization.

HEAVY CHARGES ON CASKET

Tag Calling for Two Hundred Forty-Six Dollars on Box Containing Unclaimed Body.

The body of a World war veteran who died in a government hospital 3,000 miles from home recently arrived in Wilmington, N. C., with charges totaling $246 attached to the casket. No relatives could be found to meet the body, nor was there any one to pay the charges.

The body was that of Seaman E. I. Vause, who succumbed in the Veterans' Bureau hospital in Palo Alto, Cal.

When no one appeared to take charge of the remains, J. L. Sprunt, commander of the local post of the American Legion, guaranteed the charges and the body was interred with full Legion ceremonies.

Protest was immediately filed with Veterans' Bureau authorities because of shipment of the remains without first ascertaining if relatives could provide sufficient means to pay the shipping charges. An explanation will be sought from those in charge, as a recent ruling provides payment of transportation charges to the place of burial.

CONCERT FUNDS GO TO NEEDY

Prominent Artists to Participate in Program Planned by Ohio Legion Post.

A concert series in Columbus, O., at which some of the leading operatic artists in the nation are to appear, is sponsored by the American Legion county council.

Direction of the concerts is by Gen. Chauncey B. Baker, department commander of the Legion in that state. Madame Schumann-Heinke, Mischa Elman and Louis Gravure have been announced as three of the artists to appear. The concerts will be given in Memorial hall.

Funds from the events will be turned over to the Legion for the purpose of aiding needy ex-service men and women.

Question Answered.

The old lady tourist in Florida was interestedly viewing a monster alligator and finally demanded of the attendant:

"You say you don't have to feed him very often. What kind of food does he like best?"

"Babies, ma'am," replied the man, mildly.

"Why, mercy me; how horrible! I shouldn't think the law would allow you to feed him such things."

"It doesn't, ma'am," asserted the attendant. "We feed him fish, mostly, but you asked what he liked best."—American Legion Weekly.

Friend of Ex-Service Men.

A believer in the employment of ex-service men, Richard Hardy, president of the Dixie Portland Cement company at Richard City, Tenn., is offering additional incentive for his employees to become members of the American Legion. Of the 61 former service men in the employ of the cement company, 58 are members of Marion post No. 62 of the Legion. The interest of Mr. Hardy in the Legion post has raised its membership from 40 Legionnaires to more than 100 veterans.

Post Composed of Indians.

A post of the American Legion, composed entirely of Chippewa Indians who served in the World war, has been formed on a reservation at Reserve, Wis. National Commander Alvin Owsley was made a chieftain of the tribe, when he paid a visit to the Wisconsin convention of the Legion. The Legion official was named "Beautifying Bird" in honor of the tribe's greatest orator. He is said to have been the first white man to be accorded this honor.

Legion Parkway 155 Feet Wide.

The widest cement thoroughfare in Brockton, Mass., and believed to be one of the widest in the nation, is known as the American Legion parkway. The parkway is 155 feet in width. It replaces a residential section and affords parking places for hundreds of automobiles. The thoroughfare was named for the Legion in honor of the service its members rendered during the World war.

ANOTHER NURSE PRAISES TANLAC

Mrs. Leona Culpepper, 17 Lucile Avenue, who was a trained nurse for fifteen years, is another highly esteemed Atlanta woman whose gratitude and desire to help others prompts her to tell of the wonderful results she derived from the Tanlac treatment.

"I had suffered from nervous indigestion and loss of appetite for four or five years," said Mrs. Culpepper, 'and was nearly always nauseated. I had heartburn so bad I could hardly stand it, and became so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework.

"Reading what Tanlac had done for others, I decided to try it, and by the time I finished the first bottle I was feeling so much better that I bought two more. When I had finished the third bottle I was feeling fine and had actually gained sixteen pounds. Tanlac is all that is claimed for it."

Cottonseed in Egypt.

The production of cottonseed oil and cake is a flourishing Egyptian industry. There are seven large crushing mills owned by European companies in Alexandria, Cairo, Kafr el Zayat and Mit Ghamr. In 1922 4,506,000 kilos of cottonseed oil were exported from Egypt to the value of £183,000; 13,000 metric tons of cottonseed cake valued at £84,000 were also exported in 1922.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound four years ago, and am taking it now for the Change of Life and other troubles and I receive great benefit from it. I am willing to let you use my letter as a testimonial because it is the truth. I found your booklet in my letter-box and read it carefully, and that is how I came to take the Vegetable Compound myself. It has given me quiet nerves so that I sleep all night, and a better appetite. I have recommended it already to all my friends and relatives."—Mrs. ENGLEMANN, 2032 Palmetto St., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N.Y.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles causing sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, "the blues," Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of nearly fifty years of service and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Englemann.

MANY PEOPLE HAVE COLDS

Almost An Epidemic—Father John's Medicine of Great Value

Doctors say that there seems to be a wave of colds in this section at this time. It is worth remembering that Father John's Medicine is of particular value treating colds and coughs and giving strength to ward off the danger of catching cold. The basis of Father John's Medicine has always been cod liver oil combined with other elements which soothe and heal the breathing tract. At the same time nourishing food elements are quickly taken up and made into new flesh and strength, thereby greatly increasing the power of resistance. Father John's Medicine does its work without narcotic drugs or stimulants.

Ruins of Old Fort Recalls Romance

Gen. Zachary Taylor's Daughter Wooed by Jefferson Davis at Wisconsin Post.

Prairie du Chien, Wis.—Did Jefferson Davis and the daughter of Zachary Taylor elope in the long ago from Fort Crawford, whose ruins have just been bought by the Daughters of the American Revolution and will be preserved?

Probably no true or untrue romance of frontier days in the upper Mississippi valley has so often been told, so often been denied—so steadfastly believed by some, and so laughed to scorn or bitterly denounced as a fake by others.

Out of the mass of evidence which has been produced by both side to substantiate their contentions, the real truth of the matter gradually has come to light. In the October number of the Palimpsest, a magazine published by Iowa Historical society, the history in authentic form is revealed, perhaps more completely and definitely than it has been heretofore in anything said or written.

While an actual elopement from Fort Crawford is disproved, romance and adventure, love and a great sorrow in the life story of Jefferson Davis are shown to be rightfully a part of the romantic interest clinging to the ruins of the famous fort. The true story, indeed, intrigues the imagination far more than the meager tale of the elopement as it is generally told.

The writer of the article in the Palimpsest, Dorothy MacBride sketches in the military adventures of Lieut. Jefferson Davis in the upper Mississippi region, along with the story of his love.

The young West Point graduate was hardly of age when he was assigned to duty at Fort Crawford in 1828. The fort at that time shared with Fort Snelling the task of guarding the northwestern frontier. Some additions to the fortifications were needed, and Lieutenant Davis, shortly after his arrival, was sent up into the Red Cedar river area of northern Wisconsin to superintend cutting timber for the new buildings. It was a severe initiation for the southerner, logging in the bitter winter cold in the wilderness, rafting the timbers down through the rapids of the Chippewa river to the Mississippi, and warding off at times hostile Indians. But he acquitted himself well and returned to the fort having won favor with comrades and superior officers.

Taylor Comes to Fort.

Doubtless a good report of him was given to the new commandant, Lieut. Col. Zachary Taylor, who the following summer was transferred from Fort Snelling to the command of Fort Crawford. Taylor brought his family with him—his wife, his son and his three beautiful daughters. The presence of the pretty young women seems to have spread commotion in the hearts of the homesick young officers, and the lieutenant proved to be no exception.

The romance that was to become the great love and the great sorrow of Jefferson Davis' life hardly had time to bud, however, before he was transferred to Fort Winnebago at Portage.

In 1831 Lieutenant Davis was ordered back to Fort Crawford, but must have had only fleeting moments to enjoy the society of Miss Sarah Taylor, for he was away first, superintending the erection of a sawmill on Yellow river in Wisconsin, and after that at the lead mines near Dubuque, where he successfully fulfilled the commission given him by Colonel Taylor to effect the removal of persons who were unlawfully working the mines.

The next year the chief, Black Hawk, smarting under his alleged wrongs, crossed over from Iowa into Illinois and led the revolt of the Sauk and Fox Indians, spreading terror among the settlers of northern Illinois and southwestern Wisconsin.

Lieutenant Davis conducted himself with credit in the war, and on the capture of Black Hawk was selected by Colonel Taylor to escort the defeated chief and his braves to Jefferson barracks.

"With Black Hawk in confinement, Lieutenant Davis again returned to Fort Crawford. His friendship for Sarah Knox Taylor soon ripened into ardent love, which was reciprocated by the charming daughter of 'Old Rough and Ready.' Colonel Taylor, it is said, always considered his presence necessary to the proper entertainment of his daughter's callers. He insisted on being present on the occasion of their visits; and when tattoo was sounded, he would yawn and say, 'It is time for all honest people to be in bed.' That meant that the young man had to leave.

"His fair daughter soon convinced him that was too trivial an obstacle to place in their way. It was not long until 'the kindliest feeling' changed; a bitter quarrel arose between Davis and Taylor—one which never abated.

"A court-martial had been ordered at the garrison. Taylor acted as president, while Davis, Tom Smith and a young officer who had just reported for duty, constituted the rest of the court. When they assembled, the young officer appeared in civilian clothes, offering the excuse that his uniform had been delayed at St. Louis. Taylor, who was a stickler for rules and customs, refused to consider any cases until the officer could take his seat in full uniform. An angry discussion over the question ensued between Taylor and Smith. A vote was called for, and much to Taylor's surprise and chagrin, Davis voted with Smith to go on with the trial. Taylor became so enraged that he turned on Davis with an oath, declaring that any man who would vote with Tom Smith on a question like that could never marry his daughter. He forbade him ever to enter his home again.

Separation Fans Love.

"The transfer of Davis from a second lieutenant in the infantry to first lieutenant and adjutant of the First dragoons in 1834 took him away from Fort Crawford to Fort Gibson, Ark. But if Colonel Taylor had hoped that the removal of Davis would change the attitude of his daughter, he was mistaken. Distance did not affect their romance in the least—in fact, it was chiefly on account of the separation that Davis resigned his commission that year. In June, 1835, he severed all connections with the United States army.

"Then it was, certain romanticists tell us, that he returned to Fort Crawford to settle the dispute with Taylor. Miss Sarah told her father that, as he could allege nothing against the character of her fiance, she intended to marry him soon. But neither time nor distance had abated the stubborn father's feelings, and he flatly refused his consent to their marriage. And so, regardless of silly feuds and stubborn fathers, it is said, the young couple planned to elope. At night, choosing the darkest hour before dawn, they would steal forth from the fort; escape to the other side of the river; be secretly married at McGregor, and return to the fort as man and wife.

"This, the romanticists tell us, actually happened. Some insist that they never returned to the fort, but hastened away down the Mississippi to Kentucky.

Death Seals Romance.

"Historians say that it was not the silent bluffs of the Mississippi that witnessed the marriage but a peaceful southern plantation in Kentucky. The true story is that shortly after the departure of Davis from the fort, Miss Taylor decided to go to live with her aunt in Kentucky. She engaged a stateroom on the steamer St. Louis and prepared to leave. A last appeal was made to her father, but the firm and unyielding colonel remained resolute. He never saw his daughter afterward, and the estrangement between him and Davis never healed during her life.

"Miss Taylor remained with her aunt until Davis came to her after his resignation at Fort Gibson. Two of the colonel's sisters, his brothers and other members of the Taylor family were present at the marriage. The young couple then left for the Davis plantation, "Brierfield," on the Mississippi some thirty miles from Vicksburg. Their romance, however, was short-lived, for in the autumn of that year the young bride caught the fever then so prevalent in the lower Mississippi region, and died."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Prize Fish Story Comes From Alaska

Long Beach, Cal.—A school of tame trout which answer their master's call, eat bread crumbs from his hands and make their headquarters in his cellar, is the theme of a fish story brought back from Skagway, Alaska, and vouched for by C. A. Bachman, local realtor.

In Skagway a switchman named Johnson has his house on the banks of a river whose waters flood his cellar, says Bachman. When Johnson opens a trap door in the floor of his kitchen and stamps his foot hundreds of speckled trout begin jumping madly about the water.

Johnson reaches down, pulls out several at a time and feeds them bread crumbs. All of his fish answer his call without fear, according to the Long Beach eyewitness of the phenomenon.

U. S. Gives Three Bison to Mexican Government

America's bison is being introduced into diplomatic circles. Three specimens have been given by the United States Department of Agriculture and the New York Zoological society to the government of Mexico as a "practical manifestation of good will between the two nations." The three animals selected as good will delegates to Mexico will be taken from the herd maintained by the Department of Agriculture on the Wichita National forest in Oklahoma.

Their new home in Mexico will be in the Zoological park maintained by the government, under the direction of Prof. A. L. Herrera. He has been apprised of the gift and is busy studying the domestic and dietary habits of the animals.

The blow received in the struggle made him normal again, doctors testified, and he has since been living quietly at home.

Sioux Indians Win Battle for Lands

Washington.—After a forty-year campaign, Joseph War Bonnet, son of a Sioux Indian chief, has defeated his pale-faced foes on the battleground of their own special choosing.

Secretary Work, ending a long litigation, ruled recently that Joseph shall hold title to 160 acres of land in Sheridan county, Nebraska, homesteaded by his father, Black War Bonnet, in 1878. The War Bonnets were dispossessed in 1882, and subsequently the land was withdrawn from the public domain by executive order. Despite the hopeless outlook, the present head of the family continued the fight by successive appeals until Secretary Work reversed decisions against him rendered by the land office.

GLASSES OF THE PRESIDENTS

This Man Has Collected Those Worn by Nine of the Chief Executives.

Eyeglasses worn by nine presidents of the United States are owned by Dr. Fred A. Stengel of Marion, O., whose chief hobby appears to be the collection of curios.

The oldest pair in the group is that which surmounted Thomas Jefferson's nose in 1801, when Jefferson was fifty-eight. Doctor Stengel purchased the glasses from an aged Virginian who lived near Monticello, Jefferson's home. This pair has a metal frame.

Of contemporary interest is President Harding's first, pair, which Stengel himself fitted when the president was editor of the Marion Star and never dreamed of some day becoming the Chief Executive. Harding selected a shell frame, oxford style, when it became necessary to reinforce his vision.

Glasses used by Theodore Roosevelt, too, who was nicknamed "Four Eyes" when, as a beardless youth, he sought to recover his health on a Western ranch, are in Stengel's collection.

In the collection are spectacles which belonged to Grover Cleveland, William McKinley, James A. Garfield, William H. Harrison, James K. Polk and Rutherford B. Hayes.—Columbia Record.

BIRD MELODIES AND MUSIC

Beautiful Passages in Works of Great Composers Borrowed From Feathered Singers.

The successful broadcasting of the song of canaries and the response of other birds miles away from the point of transmission will provide new impetus for the discussion of the contribution bird melodies have made to music. It has been claimed by close students of bird life that many of the most beautiful passages in the works of great composers are lifted note by note from the birds, and that the patient watcher may hear Beethoven from the throat of an oriole, note for note and measure for measure, emphasis and everything. Nor is this the only incident cited. They number, literally, scores. There is nothing surprising in this. Bird-music is the most fluent and natural in the world; so-called coloratura voices merely are in imitation of the bird voice, and their most noted numbers are usually entitled with some allusion to birds. No one who has listened to the surprising flights of melody of which a canary is capable but marvels at the mysteries which create such a tiny, delicate and perfect mechanism.—Detroit News.

Gives $50 for Twins.

Max Dick, owner of the tenement house at 69-73 Rivington street, New York, which is known as the "house of babies," because 52 families with more than 200 children live there, recently made good his standing promise to present cash prizes to tenants who became parents of twins. Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Berger became the possessors of twins, which brought their family up to five. The twins, a boy and a girl, each weighing 5½ pounds, were named Samuel and Esther. "Uncle" Dick, as he is called, attended the feast and afterward handed Mrs. Berger $50 in gold and told her that she could forget rent day until the end of February. Max Dick has a unique record among East side landlords. He has not increased the rent in twenty-five years and has never ousted a jobless tenant for nonpayment of rent. He arrived here penniless forty years ago from Austria. First he worked in a tailor's shop and then he tended bar. With his savings he bought the tenement house. In 1908 he offered $50 for every pair of twins born there and $150 for the ninth child if it were a boy. At the same time he assured his tenants that large families would not mean high rents and he has kept his word.

Too Rich to Be a Communist.

Questions of doctrine continue to trouble Communists—both pundits in high places and the simple minded faithful in the villages. Heretical conduct, as well as heretical opinion, is ground for excluding men from the party.

The story is told of a humble and sincere Communist rural family, where the wife was an enterprising woman of the thrifty, "managing" type. She gradually accumulated a pig, some fowls and some rabbits, which multiplied until by selling part of them and a few household belongings she was able to buy a cow. Thus eventually she developed a little stock farm.

However, the family's unusual standard of well being was looked upon with suspicion by the husband's fellow Communists, who decided to exclude him from the party. In the course of his trial for heresy the delicate point came up as to just how many turkeys changed a Communist into a bourjooy.—Living Age.

Russian Crop Acreage Gains.

Russian agriculture is beginning to show signs of coming back as a factor in world agricultural trade, although still short of prewar production, according to a special survey of Russian conditions made by the Department of Agriculture at Washington, which reports an increase of from 15 to 20 per cent in the acreage sown to crops this season. Trade agreements between the Soviet government and importers in Germany, Austria, Denmark, England and Norway have established trade connections, fixed methods of payments and facilitated commercial intercourse.

Times Are Changing.

Each succeeding Christmas season eclipses the past one in the amount of furniture sold for gift giving. Furniture is the prized and appreciated gift, for the individual or family, and by all odds, the most useful and enduring gift for the home.—A handsome overstuffed living room suit in mohair, tapestry, velour, or reed and tapestry, adds new charm to the parlor or library.—A matched dining room suit, along with a tea wagon to help serve the well basted turkey.—A Colonial four poster bedroom suit for the guest chamber. Make Mother remember Xmas every day of the year by saving her miles of footsteps with a Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet. Sister or sweetheart will be disappointed unless she receives that hope chest of Tennessee cedar. Big brother would appreciate a chiffrobe or a smoker's cabinet. Don't forget Dad—remember him with a big comfy chair or a Globe Wernicke's sectional book case. While for the kiddies are doll carriages, toy cedar chests, rockers and high chairs. Individual gifts of electric floor and table lamps, gate leg tables, spinet desks, Windsor chairs footstools and card tables. All these and many more quaint articles can be found in the largest holiday stock ever assembled at W. R. Brachbill's Furniture Store. Adv

Boy Injured by Auto.

Wendell S. Wilson, 12-year-old son of J. L. Wilson, of State College, was struck by a Ford car Saturday night as he was crossing College Ave. near the Myers meat market. The car was driven by Kelly Henry, of Pine Grove Mills, and was proceeding at a fair rate of speed. The boy was knocked down and sustained a bad cut above the eye, contusion of the shoulder and a badly bruised and scarred face. Dr. L. E. Kidder was called to the home and after an examination of the injuries stated that the boy would be all right provided no complications set in.

She screamed for aid as she moved away from her infant child, which was creeping on the floor, and her husband ran to her trying to beat out the flames with his hands and then, seeing he was not extinguishing the fire, he went to another room and got some bed clothing which he used to smother the flames.
